Thames demand leads to increased capacity for Tilbury service

P&O Ferries is to increase capacity on its Tilbury-Zeebrugge route due to increased demand from both accompanied & unaccompanied freight customers wishing to use the company's dedicated service between the River Thames and the Belgian hub port.

The introduction of this increased capacity coincides with the completion of the first phase of the expansion of the RoRo Terminal facilities at the Port of Tilbury.

From 26 October 2009 , P&O Ferries will introduce its freight ship m/v Norqueen to the route, replacing the smaller Norcape .

Norqueen is the sistership of the Norking which already operates on the route.

Both ships are 17,500 GT and have a carrying capacity of 145 freight units each.
